Thesis/Dissertation Embargo Procedures

Introduction:
Utah State University is committed to the open dissemination of knowledge. As part of this commitment, USU requires its graduate students to submit their theses and dissertations to UMI/ProQuest and the University’s Institutional Repository, DigitalCommons@USU. However, USU recognizes that in some rare situations, release of a dissertation/thesis may need to be delayed. For these situations, USU provides the option of embargoing (i.e. delaying release) of a dissertation or thesis for five years after graduation, with an option to extend indefinitely. Students requesting delayed release of their work must obtain approval and signatures from the head of their academic department and the Dean of Graduate Studies.

The following conditions may be deemed reasonable grounds for obtaining a delay:

- The student plans to file a patent based on the research in the thesis/dissertation
- The work contains data that the student or other members of his/her research team are using in future publication
- Work in the thesis or dissertation was supported by a grant or contract and is subject to review by the sponsor or grantor prior to publication
- Student plans to publish thesis/dissertation and the publisher has indicated that it considers its release “prior publication”

Procedures:
A student who wishes to delay release of his/her work must follow two distinct procedures, one for USU and one for UMI/Proquest.

USU Digital Commons Embargo Process: First, the student must contact his/her department head. The department head must then sign the embargo form, also indicating the reason for the embargo. The student must then obtain the approval and signature of the Dean of Graduate Studies. On approval, the student attaches the embargo form to the approval form for submission to the library. The thesis or dissertation will then be hidden from public view in the DigitalCommons for the entire five-year embargo period. Students who wish to extend an existing embargo may do so by contacting the DigitalCommons Administrator at USUDigitalCommons@usu.edu.

ProQuest Embargo Process: During the electronic thesis/dissertation submission process through ProQuest, the student must select the appropriate embargo option under the publishing restrictions setting. The student’s work will then be hidden from public view for the specified duration. ProQuest allows embargoes in two-year increments, so it is the responsibility of the student to renew the embargo through ProQuest for the appropriate duration.

Extensions and Post-Facto Embargoes: If a student needs to embargo a thesis/dissertation after it has already been made available through the USU repository and UMI/Proquest, he or she needs to obtain approval and signatures on the embargo form as described above and bring it to the Library’s Scholarly Communications Librarian (Merrill-Cazier Library, room 233, 2nd floor). The Library will withdraw the thesis/dissertation from the DigitalCommons and request that ProQuest embargo the student’s work.
