Utah State University Libraries released the Resources for Racial Justice LibGuide, an online guide intended to be a starting point to a community-built collection to promote learning about racism and racial justice issues. The guide supports USU Libraries’ Statement of Solidarity that condemns racism and violence against Black people and all people of color, and reiterates a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion.

The Resources for Racial Justice LibGuide contains lists and links for books, articles, videos, definitions of guiding concepts and USU resources for further engagement. The guide is intended to grow through community submissions curated by USU Libraries. USU Libraries encourages submissions about antiracism, equity, diversity and inclusion through this Qualtrics recommendation form. Submissions can be anonymous or by author and will be reviewed regularly.
